COUNTY NEWS.

Local Items of general interest to a majority of our readers, especially distant friends.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Mail your items early so they will reach our office not later than Tuesday morning—Monday if possible. News received after that will not be published unless of unusual importance. Advertise no one's business, and write on one side of the paper only.

In consequence of the extra amount of political reading in our issue this week, country correspondence has been cut down considerably and in some instances, where not of general interest, entirely omitted.

A Newspaper.

The following editorial was written by Colonel W.C.P. Breckinridge and published in the Lexington Herald Tuesday, November 23, 1897, and republished in same paper Wednesday, October 6, 1909. The sentiment is so forceful and truthful that we herewith reproduce it, giving every due credit therefor, and we trust it will be read with interest.

There are few enterprises more difficult, requiring more elements to make it eminently successful, than the profitable establishment of a great and popular newspaper, and few so easy to cripple or to kill. There are perhaps twenty millions of people in America who can read; that is a reading public incapable of estimate; of them perhaps one-third read newspapers, either weekly, dailies, political, denominational, or agricultural. This is probably an under rather than an excessive estimate. These papers are of every conceivable character, ability and worth. From the little two-by-four bi-weekly to the mammoth daily; from the mere advertising sheet to the New York Herald; from the poster folded so as to pretend to be a paper to a metropolitan daily the interval is almost beyond measurement. Morning papers have become as much of a necessity to thousands as their breakfast; and to perhaps equal thousands the evening daily is a necessity; and the newspaper habit is as easy to cultivate and as difficult to break as the morphine habit. The functions of a paper are as various as their differences and as numerous as their pretensions. Their power is also varied and diverse.

The character gained by newspapers is as individual as that of persons and their reputation as well known as that of citizens. The management of a great daily requires the highest skill and calls forth the ablest talents. There is no power more benign than that of an able, conscientious, truthful and brave paper, inspired by a sincere love of truth and controlled by principle, and in the end such a paper gathers friends, supporters, advertisers, patrons, who remain loyal to it even when they disagree with its views and do not share its convictions. The mere business management of such a paper is of the highest order; the expenditure is enormous, the receipts must be expended with care, economy, and yet with enterprise and liberality.

The relations of a party paper to its party involves delicate questions, but no party can control the columns of a truly able and influential paper. Subscribers have no right to dictate the course of a paper; no party as party ever built up a paper; papers are built up by men who understand their business and supply the demands of readers; parties as a rule owe far more to their papers than the papers do to the party. The right of subscribers is to quit; to take some other papers.

Loyalty to party may require opposition to its conventions, nominations and platforms. Papers are not nominees, are not candidates, and are not bound by conventions save as they truly represent the tenets of the party and are themselves representatives of the best thought and purpose of the party. A real organ ought to be a leader rather than follower; it must be a pioneer; it must speak daily and at once; it must formulate the unspoken judgment of its associates upon recognized principles and march necessarily at the head of the army. Conventions can not meet often and they express the opinion of yesterday. the judgment formed upon what has transpired; the paper must express the opinion of every recurring day, give utterance to the judgment on the happening event as it happens. And if it be brave, thoughtful and sincere; clean, upright and truthful, it will be held in esteem and respect if it does not command the approval of the readers.

The loose talk that a paper is a traitor, a deserter, an ingrate, is all nonsense and most of it is contemtible demagoguery to secure patronage for inferiority.

To publish the news—in the broad sense of that phrase—is now perhaps the principal function of the daily. To publish it fairly, honestly, impartially, is a very rare gift, and the paper that does this always becomes extremely valuable and its patronage does not depend upon it editorials.

Papers can not live upon sentimental support, any more than a grocery, or a shoe shop and sudden excitement can not furnish permanent support; for a time such booms may give an appearance of support, but when the excitement passes away the support passes away.

The free discussion of questions is a boon and it is well to have papers representing every phase of such questions; but to establish a successful newspaper takes more than ability to discuss public questions.

The Herald would be glad to see an able daily successfully established which would represent with ability, fairness and courtesy whatever views our friends who do not agree with us have; but it has doubted whether the matters of division were of such a character as to permit division long enough to give opportunity for such a paper to get rooted. These divisive questions will be settled by commercial, economic and industrial events and in a period so short that men will soon be careless of the division.

Frightful Fate Averted.

"I would have been a cripple for life, from a terrible cut on my knee cap," writes Frank Disberry Kelliher, Minn., "without Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which soon cured me." Infallible for wounds, cut and bruises, it soon cures burns, scalds, old sores, boils, skin eruptions. World's best for piles. 25c at all dealers.

STILLWATER.

Mrs. S. C. Rose and R. J. Rose are on the sick list.

Dr. C. Hood Williams, of your town, was on Stillwater Saturday.

Dewey and Miss May Rose, of your town, visited relatives here Sunday.

G. W. Sally, who has been confined to his home for three weeks, is able to be out again.

Boone Tyra last week purchased a three-year-old filly from E. B. Tyra, his brother, paying $150 for same.

E. T. Kash, your Landsaw agent, made a trip to Little Laurel last Thursday to attend to some business matters.

Last Saturday Newt Hatton, who lived near the Stillwater post office, moved his family and effects to Spring branch, on Holly.

Rev. John M. Tolson, of Campton, preached at Stillwater bridge church Sunday. Rev. Jeff Brewer and others preached at Laurel.

Robert L. Rose says he is preparing to move his family to Middletown, Ohio, immediately after the election, where he expects to make his future home.

Rev. James Brown, Sr., of Gosneyville, was kicked on the leg one day last week, causing a very painful wound, and has not been able to stir around any since.

Sarah and Maggie Combs and Myrtle Buchanan, of Stillwater, and Bertha Rose, of Hazel Green, visited your correspondent and family Saturday and Sunday.

"Never Sweat" William Faulkner and family and Neace Brewer and family moved to Campton. The former will run the Kelly Fulks coal mines and the latter will drive a team for Judge G. T. Center.

Last week your correspondent went to McCausey to haul a load of groceries to Copperas creek, in Menifee county, for the Jeff Brewer logging job, and accidently mashed his right hand, which has been very painful.

ANTICIPATION.

We anticipate that our editorial of last week in which we stated our position on the race in this judicial district will call forth denunciation and abuse from our neighbor, the Breathitt County News, and that THE HERALD will be called a sinner and other ill names. We will not be surprised, and people who read the Breathitt County News will not be surprised at anything it may say.

Why?

The News came into being in 1901, designed to further the political fortunes of its editor, J. Wise Hagins, to oppose Judge Hargis and Judge Redwine and others of the Democratic leaders of that day, and it continued that work until the Republicans refused to give him the office of Circuit Judge in 1908. Judge Hagins was defeated for the nomination for County Judge of Breathitt county in 1901 by Judge James Hargis. He raised the cry of fraud and opposed the election of his opponent, but Judge Hargis was elected. In 1905, in the "hogback" campaign in Breathitt, Judge Hagins was a candidate for County Attorney of Breathitt county against a nephew of Judge Redwine; supported the Republican ticket and was opposed by Judge Redwine, and was elected. In 1907 it supported Willson for Governor against Hager, and assailed Hager as being a machine politician, and attacked him as being the friend and associate of Judge Hargis and Judge Redwine.

In February, 1908, upon the lamented death of Judge Riddell, Editor Hagins rushed to Frankfort to apply for appointment at the hands of a Republican Governor to succeed Judge Riddell, and upon the refusal of the Governor to recognize him, he went back to Jackson, as he usually does when turned down, and changed his politics again and has since been a Democrat.

Such is the brief outline of the checkered political career of Judge Hagins during the past eight years and he now comes to ask the people of Breathitt county to support him, and in his connection with his race he is strongly advocating the election of Judge Redwine. What will the people think of him, and what excuse has he for opposing the election of Judge Adams? What change has taken place between Judge Hagins and Judge Redwine in these latter years? They are now together and are friends, wherein they were opponents and enemies in former years. Has there been an improvement and reformation on the part of one, or has the other been drawn down to the lower grade?

The good citizenship of this district is not to vascillate and be drawn about by every wind from such changing sources, when the welfare of their homes and the best interests of their posterity are at stake.

A CERTAIN county official, as we are privately informed, is threatening THE HERALD with ruin because we do not support Mr. Redwine. Indeed, he says we shall never more have the legal printing which comes through the Circuit court, even though he has to establish a paper to get it. This same gentleman has time and again been boosted by THE HERALD and often said that its influence was largely instrumental in getting him into his present position. "Eaten bread is soon forgotten," and because we don't see through his glasses he dooms us to the demnition bow-wows. He reckons, however, without considering the fact that James P. Adams will drive things in Circuit court for the next six years, and after that the editor will be so rich from the emoluments of legal patronage in the county that we will need no assistance from any source. THE HERALD survived many years without the aid of legal patronage, and if need be can do so again.

A PROMINENT Demoorat met the editor of this paper a few days ago and greeted him by saying: "How are you, old Cooper; you have played hell in the Circuit judge's race, but I am proud to know you stand in as an ardent supporter of the county ticket. You look at the matter from a common sense view; that politics is really not a consideration in judicial matters and that the printer must have money to run his machine, and if one party don't put up the other should. You did exactly as I should have done, and if any of your friends get disgruntled let 'em growl and be damned. I am as good a Democrat as any man in or out of the county and I go on record that you did what any sensible man would have done." And he is a Democrat.

THE HERALD a week or so ago stated that Mr. Rose and Mr. Miller, candidates for judge and sheriff on the Republican ticket, had withdrawn from the race. Mr. Rose was off at that time, but Mr. Miller did not withdraw from the race until Monday. This insures the election of George Sally for sheriff, albeit he had it won even though his Republican opponent had stayed on. George Sally is perhaps the strongest man in the county, but the withdrawal of his opponent relieves him and his friends of any anxiety.

DAVID, your name is Dennis. Your political pot will cease to boil after the November election, and if you will take the advice of a one-time admirer you will devote your time to Blackstone and in sackcloth and ashes seek forgiveness for the tricks that were dark and the deeds you have done.

WHILE we are supporting Judge Adams and Kelly Kash in the judicial race, we are in no sense a Republican, and shall do all in our power to bring success to the entire county ticket. The judicial race is not strictly speaking a political issue and should not be. Therefore we are free to support the men we believe best fitted for the offices to be filled. And because we do so it in no sense lessens our zeal for the Democratic ticket, every man on which we believe will be elected by a handsome majority. In a talk Monday with one of the strongest Republicans in the county he practically conceded the election of the entire Democratic county ticket.

UNDER the mistaken idea that THE HERALD has gone Republican a few of our patrons threaten to withdraw their support, and we go on record now to prove that seven out of ten who do so are men who have to be dunned for their subscbription every year and overlook the fact that THE HERALD has always been for material and moral development and that it has been a labor of love on our part.

HERE is a political forecast that it will be well to put in your hat band. The present Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney will continue in office for the ensuing six years, and every office in the county will be filled by a Democrat. It is the handwriting on the wall and so plainly written that the way-farer, though a fool, can plainly see it.

[Communicated.]

Breathitt County.

The Breathitt County News vauntingly proclaims that it has always advocated what it believed to be best for the people. It advocated not only the appointment, but the election of Judge Hagins to the Circuit court bench. Does it believe that this would have been to the best interest of the people? Does it believe the best interest of the people can be served by having a man on the bench who is not only ignorant of the first principles, but of the first elements of the law?

It advocates the election of Judge Redwine. Does it believe his election is to the interest of the people of Breathitt county; does the News believe that he can enforce the law in Breathitt county? History records the sad, sad fact that he did not do it when Judge before. In his administration of the duties of this office there springs up a reign of lawlessness in Breathitt county equal almost in atrocity to the reign of terror in France. Prominent and leading citizens were shot down upon the streets in the glare of the open day in the presence of the officers of the law, from the Circuit court room in the court house. These crimes made darker the bleakest pages of our history. Lawless men walked the streets, assassins plied their trade, citizens, for want of protection, fled from the state. And one, John Patrick, after having sought a place of security, informed Judge Redwine that if he would give him protection he would give information that would lead to the indictment of the men who had assassinated Cockrill. He responded by arming the very man who was charged with the assassination, namely, Ed Callahan, with a warrant for the arrest of the informer, who fled at once from the state. These men were the friends of Judge Redwine, and what is left of them are his supporters now, and the fact remains that not an indictment was made against any one for any of these crimes by any of the grand juries that were selected by commisioners appointed by Judge Redwine.

The News advocates the election of the Democratic ticket in Breathitt county. Does it believe that with the influences supporting that ticket that the best interest of Breathitt can be served by its election? Who is officering the army, manning the ships and fighting the battles of the Democratic party? Is it not the remains that is left of the parties that contributed to the reign of terror?

Who prostituted the public offices in Breathitt county? Who caused the records of our court to be disgraced by the acts of Dorsey, Lewis and the News' Bill Carnes? Are not these elements in Breathitt county supporting the Democratic ticket in this election? Have Dorsey, Lewis, Carnes and Redwine grown better, or has the News grown worse?

Measure by This Rule.

The true test of whether Judge Adams or Judge Redwine made the best judge is a comparison of the peace and quiet of the district during their respective terms of office.

The voters of the district will put them to this test; they will measure them by this rule. By their acts ye shall know them. It has not been long enough since Judge Redwine quit the bench for people to forget things that occurred when he was judge.

When have no desire to make matters harder for him than they are; God knows they are bad enough, but these matters are a part of Judge Redwine's history and they must be discussed.

The people are discussing them.

When a strong man, a man with a resolute and independent will, was needed he was sadly lacking. It is a misfortue rather than a fault; yet it is a fact that can not be let go unconsidered.

There was a time when Judge Redwine had an opportunity to make a mark for himself that the ravages of time could never have effaced, if he had chosen to make it. For some reason he did not do so. His failure was an unmendable misfortune for him and a blunder which cost the country dearly in reputation and prosperity.

He had his opportunity. He failed ignominiously. Let the fault be what it may or whose it may; it stands charged to his country and he must stand the consequences. A man of true courage would have taken the bull by the horns and wrought order from chaos.

Mr. Voter, we ask you this: Is your life and your property safer now than it was in Judge Redwine's time? If it is, you should vote for Judge Adams.—Beattyvill Enterprise.

A Card of Introduction.

Gentlemen and citizens of Wolfe county: I am proud of the opportunity of introducing to you James F. Brown, of Gosneyville, as the Republican nominee and candidate for the office of Assessor of Wolfe county, and, gentlemen, being personally acquainted with Mr. Brown and the Brown family, and historically acquainted with their ancestry, I feel somewhat able to do justice, both to Mr. Brown and the public, in presenting him to the people of this county. So, gentlemen and friends, first, and in order that you may know of what family he sprung from and to whom he belongs, according to the ties of nature, I wish to say that he is the younger son of Rev. James M. Brown and wife, Polly Brown, of this place and county, and is a nephew to the well known and dearly beloved Rev. John Brown, of Menefee county, to whose once cheering, but now stilled, voice many of us have ofttimes listened with glad hearts and uplifted souls. He is also a brother to John Brown, Jr., who lost his life by being crushed to death by a log rolling ever him. A man whom many of you know and who for generosity and uprightness you have learned to love, and of whom I wish to say that in spirit, principle and practice, and for truth and veracity his young brother is a fair specimen.

He is a grandson of Jackie Rose, one of the first settlers of Stillwater, and who was one of the best and leading citizens of the county in his day.

Mr. Brown is nephew to Uncle Bob and Jeff Rose, of Stillwater, and Uncle John and Joe Rose, of Lacy Creek, all of whom are among the very best, quietest, law abiding and upright citizens of our county.

So now, my friends, you will not be greatly surprised to know my young friend Mr. Brown, as I know him, to be one of the most strictly sober, straight forward, upright, honest and honorable young men of our county, our state, or, as to that matter, our United States.

Gentlemen, I have been well acquainted with Mr. Brown from his early youth and have been associated with him in his home, in school, in church, and in Sunday school, and on the public highway, and have always found him to be pure in conversation, never attempting to use lewd, vulgar, or indecent language, never attempting to swear, never approaching a falsehood, never tattling or talking about his neighbors, or indulging in anything of the kind.

He is a strictly sober man, for as much as I have been with Mr. Brown I have never seen him intoxicated in the least degree; never did I see this young man touch the bottle, drink a drop of whisky, brandy, beer, or anything of the intoxicating kind. Neither did I at any time in life smell the scent of anything of the kind on his breath.

He is a liberal man, being ever ready to go down in his pocket and bring out any reasonable contribution to relieve the sick or suffering, to aid the church or Sunday school, to assist any worthy friend in doing good to himself or mankind. He stands ever ready to lend an uplifting hand to any church, society or institution in the advancement of the principles of religion, morality, education and refinement. He is a man with an unstained record from his childhood, and is every way just such a man as is worthy of the public honor and support of the good citizens of Wolfe county to whom we look for such a majority of votes as will safely and securely elect him to the office of Assessor of Wolfe county.

Now, gentlemen, we do not ask you to take these claims for true upon our word, but we ask you to see Mr. Brown, see his friends, see any truthful and honest acquaintance of his and learn who Mr. Brown is, and then we feel that you will cheerfully give him your support in the coming November election, and us your hearty approval as to doing justice to you as our fellow citizens, and to Mr. Brown in presenting him to you as our candidate.

Our New Hair Vigor

Ayer's Hair Vigor was good, the best that was made. But Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is better. It is the one great specific for falling hair. A new preparation in every way. New bottle. New contents. Ask your druggist to show it to you, "the new kind."

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says

As we now make our new Hair Vigor it does not have the slightest effect upon the color of the hair. You may use it freely and for any length of time without fear of changing the color. Stops falling hair. Cures dandruff.

THE HERALD.

Through an oversight our foreman failed to change the date on the first page of this paper, and it should read "October 21."

Mrs. Rosa Hollon, wife of J. B. Hollon, our near neighbor, has been sick for about a week.

After a pleasant visit of about two weeks with friends and relatives at Mt. Sterling and Maytown Misses Emma and Minnie Oldfield returned home Saturday last.

The Grant County News, formerly published at Dry Ridge, has been moved to Williamstown, from which place it will be issued, having absorbed the Williamstown Courier.

Less than two weeks now until the election is over, and if the people of this section want good roads they should not fail to vote for the constitutional amendment which will be submitted.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has become famous for its cures of coughs, colds, croup and influenza. Try it when in need. It contains no harmful substance and always gives prompt relief. Sold by all dealers.

Last week our Toliver letter from "Sunshine" came after the paper had been printed, and this accounts for its nonappearance. The postmark from Toliver was the 12th, but it did not reach us until the evening of the 14th.

Miss Roxie Murphy, of Nanny, accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Maggie Derickson, of Bedford, Ia., who has been her guest for a week or so past, paid Hazel Green and THE HERALD a pleasant visit Friday, and were also guests of Taylor Caskey and wife for dinner.

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. Sold by all dealers.

One of the bean pole variety of our young men recently sent fifty cents in answer to an advertisement in a story paper telling "How to get fat." He received a circular from the concern which read: "How get get fat: Go to the butcher and buy it by the pound."

There will be speaking here Friday by two or three. Possibly Judge Redwine among the orators, and we bespeak for them a good crowd. Some one, or mayhap all of them, will ventilate THE HERALD by perforating its career like a pepper box top. Listen with respectful mien, but bear in mind that THE HERALD has always been on the side of justice.

The balloon or airship which passed over Morgan county, last Wednesday morning, proves to have been the New York, which was navigated by Max Fleischmann, of Cincinnati, and A. H. Forbes. They left St. Louis at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday morning about 11 they landed about 20 miles from Richmond, Va. They passed over Petersburg, Va., and en route over Evansville, Ind. The highest elevation was 8,000 feet, and at no time did they experience trouble except in an instance when they drifted toward Canada, but they threw out ballast and came to a direct eastern course. It was plainly seen about 5:00 a. m. near Goodwin's Chapel and five hours afterward they landed, as stated, near Richmond, Va., having traveled 731 miles at the rate of 38 miles an hour. By his achievement Mr. Fleischmann secures the Lahm Cup, a prize given for the longest distance balloon trip. There were 26 balloons entered in the contest and Fleischmann, owner of the balloon, is therefore very proud of his achievement. Mr. Fleischmann is the son of ex-Mayor Fleischmann, deceased, of Cincinnati.

J. P. Bicknell has returned from a four weeks' evangelistic trip to Overton county, Tennessee, holding meetings 12 miles from Livingston, the county seat, in a district which has been very badly neglected. The two weeks' meeting held at Eagle's Creek resulted in 17 baptisms and a church organized with 30 members, with H. J. Derthick, principal of the Livingston Academy, pastor. He also visited his daughter, Estella, and Bro. Derthick, at Livingston, and was present at the opening of the academy. The school opened with great enthusiasm and many citizens were present. Bro. Derthick is held in very high esteem by all, and the school has a very promising future. The enrollment up to last Monday was 304.

PEKIN.

Born, on the 16th, to the wife of A. J. Combs, a girl.

Stanley Ward and Hobert Hale returned home from Illinois last Saturday.

Mrs. Floyd Havens gave the young folks a carpet tacking and social the other evening.

On the 5th inst., Mrs. J. C. Ward gave a birthday dinner in honor of her husband's 50th anniversary.

A large crowd attended the funeral of Mrs. Goad at Flat Gap Sunday, this place being well represented.

Miss Laura Testerman, who has been visiting Miss Edna Hale for the past two weeks, has returned to her home in Mt. Sterling.

Rollie Creekbaum and Patton Henry, who have been visiting at T. F. Ward's, have returned to their home at Moscow, Ohio.

Married, on the 10th inst., at the home of Silas Helton, Jim Helton, the son of Jackson, and Miss Ida Moore; also, David Haney and Rinda Maze.

Regular Attendance.

It takes regular attendance at school and regular study hours for a student to do any good at school. This is a fact that few people seem to realize. The child who is compelled to stay at home should make every effort to study the daily lessons and keep up with the classes in school. The education of the child is no secondary matter to it. Without an education in this day and time its path will be rugged indeed in the future. In England young people do not make their debut in society until they have finished their education and especially until after they have reached their sixteenth year of age. How many of our own boys and girls neglect their studies to frolic around? Don't do it children, you will regret it later. Your school days will soon be over and your success in life depends upon your regular attendance and hard work at school. Nothing wins but hard, honest, energetic study. You make it. Don't forget your books, children, and remember

"Heights of great men sought and kept,
Were not attained by sudden flight;
But they while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."

J. C. B. Little, the Democratic candidate for jailer of Wolfe county, was here Friday, and in a talk with "Our Man About Town" said he felt sanguine of his election. Brack Little was jailer from January, 1903, to January, 1906, and rendered entire satisfaction. During his term he had some pretty tough customers, but he treated them so well that every one of them will vote for him this time, which shows that he knows how to treat people, and that goes a long ways. From what we know of the race we feel sure that Mr. Little will be the next jailer and ask every Democrat to support him.

R. R. Perry's Experience.

I have had an experience which makes for more carefulness in traveling. The story below taken from the Winchester News is substantially correct:

"I have traveled for fifty years. I have been all over the country from Maine to California and from Canada to the Mexican border. I have been in all sorts of crowds including the hundreds of thousands that gathers at the inauguration ceremonies and have never lost a cent. That experience was left for my own city and within fifty yards of my own home."

So stated R. R Perry Saturday when he was telling of losing $15 by pickpockets. Mr. Perry had decided to join a fishing party of Clark county people at Cruise, in Rockcastle county. He took the 11:20 train Friday night over the L. and N. for his destination and did not discover his loss until he put his hand in his pocket to pay his hotel bill at Livingston.

He came back to Winchester on the next train thinking he had mislaid his pocket book. But on the train he solved the problem. There was a large crowd getting on and off the train and he, having both hands filled with fishing tackle, waited until after the crowd had boarded the cars. Then he stepped on the step of the platform. Just at that moment a smart young fellow rushed out of the car door trying to get off, and another rushed from the platform trying to get on. Mr. Perry was wedged in between the two. He wondered at the time about the young man's hurry but never gave a thought of the pocket book.

He is minus $15 and has gotten some experience which was cheap at the price.—Sun-Sentinel Perrywinkles.

An Intelligent View.

It is a generous sentiment that influences many voters to support Kelly Kash, who on political questions, hold to different party views; and it is because they believe he had exerted himself for the public welfare in the district.

The duties he must attend to require impartial, non-political action on his part. There is not a single political duty required at his hands. He must represent the state in all cases against persons accused of public offenses. No favoritism or partiality should be shown in the office of commonwealth's attorney; and many Democrats and independent voters as well as Republicans knowing this, and believing that Mr. Kash has tried to serve the public well, will vote for him. This is an intelligent and liberal view. It speaks well for the voter, for it is a broad-minded decision to support an officer who has only served a brief period where he has performed his duty faithfully. All know that Mr. Kash has held the office of commonwealth's attorney only since the spring of 1908, less than two years, and that in the meantime he has been subjected to two previous races, thus incurring such expense as to deprive him of any profit so far, and now with a full term to be filled, the considerate voters do not think it would be generous, liberal or fair to stamp disapproval on Mr. Kash when he has as all admit, attempted to perform his duty well for the people. —Beattyville Enterprise.

KENTUCKY KERNELS

Carefully Collated and Concisely Chronicled.

A farmer in Mercer county raised a stalk of tobacco nine feet high with 37 large leaves.

The two-year-old son of County Judge Sutton, of Beattyville, died last week of membranous croup after two days' illness.

The town of Burnside, in Pulaski county, was nearly wiped off the map by a disastrous fire last week. Loss about $60,000.

Burglars entered the general store of Lloyd & Chamberlain, near Maysville, one night last week and carried off a lot of goods. No clue to the thieves.

Hiram Hedges, who killed William W. Wyatt near Howard's Mill, in Bath county, several months since, was acquitted at Owensville at the recent term of Circuit court.

Sullivan Burton, the 16-year-old son of Al Burton, of Blaine, in Lawrence county, was kicked on the head by a vicious horse, fracturing the skull and allowing the brains too ooze out.

At Franklin two little boys, aged 8 and 5 years, sons of Ben Pickard, mistook poke root for sweet potatoes, ate it and died. The grief stricken mother tried to commit suicide.

Muford Saunders, the five-year old son of Letcher Saunders, of Nicholasville, set fire to his father's barn while playing with matches. Four cows and a lot of hay and other feed were destroyed.

The infant child of John Francis, of Perry county, was burned to death when the home of Francis was destroyed. Francis was away hauling timber and did not know of the fatality for several hours. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Tuesday morning of last week Winchester was visited by one of the most disastrous fires that has visited that city in years. The estimated loss is about $30,000, many of the finest business houses in the city being destroyed.

Former United States Senator William Lindsay died at his home, in Frankfort, last Friday morning. For ten days the venerable statesman lay at death's door, but his tremendous vitality and sturdy constitution had resisted until it could no longer. He was 74 years of age.

While sitting in front of an old fashioned fire place at his home, near Lawrenge, a bottle of whiskey fell out of the pocket of James Campbell and broke. The fluid ignited, setting fire to his clothes, and he was burned to a crisp before aid could be rendered. He died in a short time.

Miles H. Ferguson, a Fleming county farmer, attempted to quiet two horses which were fighting, when a vicious stallion seized his arm just above the wrist in his teeth and crushed it to a jelly. The animal held on to the man's arm until beaten off with a club by Mr. Ferguson's son.

Mrs. Mollie Oder, aged 71 years, wife of Jim Oder, of Harrison county, fell into a well at home last week and was drowned. Her daughter-in-law had been to Cynthiana and when she and the children arrived home from school a search was made and the body found at the bottom of the well.

Allen Lantz, sheriff of Leslie county, left for Monterey, Cal., to bring back Meb Begley, who is charged with the killing of John Sizemore about two years ago. Begley wrote letters to several of his former acquaintances in Hazard, among whom was a young woman who told of his whereabouts.

Charley O'Hare, aged 18 years, narrowly escaped death while working with a rock crusher on the traction line between Lexington and Nicholasville. His leeve caught on a nail and he was dragged into the machinery. His shoulder was dislocated, his head cut and he was otherwise severely bruised.

John C. Roberts, who sought to engineer a gigantic counterfeiting scheme in which Mexican bank notes were involved, pleaded guilty in the United States court at Louisville and was sentenced to six years in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. Marion Roberts, his brother, who was arrested on the same charge, was acquitted.

20 Years With Heart Trouble

"Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has cured me of heart disease of over 20 years' standing. I was so bad that I could not do my work, and could scarcely draw a full breath without fainting or smothering. The doctor told me he could do no more for me; then I commenced taking the Heart Remedy. I shall never forget that night. I slept better than I had before in months. I kept right on getting better, until I was perfectly well."

MRS. LAURA RUSSELL,
Logan, Iowa.

When the heart action is weak, it fails to pump the blood through the lungs with sufficient rapidity. Then the lungs do not absorb the proper amount of oxygen, although they may be taking in a normal amount of air. The result is shortness of breath, smothering spells, difficult breathing, oppressed feeling in chest. Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, and in this way increases the circulation.

Ready For the Dash to the World's Farthest North—Expedition Well Planned and Equipped

[SECOND ARTICLE]

WE awoke off Cape Robertson and went ashore before breakfast. The coast here rises suddenly to an altitude of 2,000 feet and is crowned with an ice cap. It is picturesque enough. Large bays, blue glacial walls and prominent headlands offer a pleasing variety, but it is much like the coast of all Greenland.

It had, however, the tremendous advantages of a southern exposure and rocks, providing a resting place for the little auk in millions. These little birds darted from the cliff to the sea. Rather rich grassy verdure also offered an oasis for the arctic hare, while the blue fox found life easy here, for he could fill his winter den with fat feathered creatures.

As we approached the shore 10 men, 9 women, 31 children and 100 dogs came out to meet us. I count the children and dogs, for they are equally important in Eskimo economy. The latter are by far the most important to the average Caucasian in the arctic.

Only small game had fallen to the Eskimos' lot, but they were eager to venture out with us after big game. At last Mr. Bradley had found a suitable retinue of native guides, and we were not long in arranging a compact.

Free passage, the good graces of the cook and a knife each were to be their pay. A caribou hunt was not sufficiently novel to merit a return to Olrick's Bay, where intelligent effort is always rewarded, but it was hoped we might get a hunt at Kookaan, near the head of Robertson Bay.

Setting Sail For Etah.

This venture, however, failed, though it gave us an interesting chase about dangerous waters in a violent gale. We returned to the igloo to do homing, paid off our guides, made presents to their women and children and set sail for Etah.

Clearing weather after the storm afforded delightful yachting weather. A fairly strong offshore wind filled the big wings of canvas. The cool air was bracing, while the bright sun threw glittering smiles from slant to slant. The seamen forward sang of the delights of fisher folk.

A phonograph sent music, classical and otherwise, into the arctic air from the cabins. At table there was a kind of continuous performance with a steady hand and receptive stomach.

During two days of stormy discomfort several important meals had been willingly missed. But in the arctic food accounts must be squared as quickly as possible.

On the following morning we passed Cape Alexander and entered Smith sound. Half a gale came from the sea, and we entered Foulke fiord. The town of Etah was composed of four tents, which for this season had been pitched beside a small stream just inside of the first projecting point on the north shores.

Inside this point there was sheltered water to land the Eskimos' kayaks.

It also made a good harbor for the yacht. It is possible in favorable seasons to push through Smith sound, over Kane basin, into Kennedy channel, but the experiment is always at the risk of the vessel.

JOHN R. BRADLEY, BACKER OF DR. COOK.

There was no special reason for us to hazard life; therefore the yacht was here prepared for the return voyage. This was to consume several days, and we sought to occupy the time in exploration and sport.

Much Game at Etah.

The vicinity of Etah is notable as the stamping ground of Dr. Kane and Dr. Hayes in the middle of the last century. There were no unexplored spots in the neighborhood, but there was a good deal of game near.

Far beyond, along the inland ice, were caribou, but we preferred to confine our exploration to the seashore. The bay waters were alive with eider ducks and guillemots, while just outside walrus dared us to venture on an open contest on the wind swept seas.

After ambitions for the chase and local exploration were satisfied we were told that the people of Annootok, twenty-five miles to the north, would be glad to see us. Here was the chance to arrange a jaunt in the motorboat. The tanks were filled, suitable food and camp equipment were loaded, and off we started on the morning of Aug. 21 for man's ultima Thule.

It was a beautiful day, with a light air from the sea. Passing inside of Littleton island, we searched for relics along Lifeboat cove. The desolate cliffs of Cape Hatherton were a blaze of color and light, but the sea was refreshingly cool, with fleets of blue towering bergs to dispel the fire of arctic midsummer.

As we rushed in comfort past the ice polished and wind swept headlands the sea was alive with birds, seal and walrus, but little shooting was done, for we were bent on enjoying the quiet sport of motorboating.

Arrival at Annootok.

As we passed the sharp rocks of Cairn Point we located nine tents in a small bay under Cape Inglefield.

"Look—there is Annootok!" said Tungan, our native guide.

Looking up Smith sound, we noted that the entire channel beyond was blocked with a jam of hard blue ice. The northernmost limit of motorboating had been reached. A perpendicular cliff served as a pier to which to fasten the boat. Here it could rise and fall with the tide, and the drifting ice did not give much trouble.

A diligent exploration of the town disclosed the fact that we had reached not only the northernmost town, but the most prosperous settlement of the Greenland shore. The best hunters had gathered here for the winter bear hunt.

Their game catch had been very lucky. Immense catches of meat were strewn along the shore. More than a hundred dogs voiced the hunt force, with which Eskimo prosperity is measured, and twelve long haired wild men came out to meet us as friends.

The wealth in food and furs of this place fixed my determination on this spot as a base for the polar dash. We were standing at a point within 700 miles of the pole. The strongest force of men, the best teams of dogs and an unlimited supply of food, combined with the equipment on board the yacht, formed an ideal plant from which to work out the campaign. The seeming hopelessness of the task had a kind of weird fascination for me. Many years of schooling in both polar zones and in mountaineering would serve a useful purpose.

Conditions Right For Dash.

Here was my chance. Here was everything necessary conveniently placed within the polar gateway. The problem was discussed with my colleague. Mr. Bradley generously volunteered to land from the yacht the food, fuel and other supplies we had provided for local use. There was abundant trading material to serve as money.

My own equipment aboard for sledge traveling could be made to serve every purpose in the enterprise. The possible combination left absolutely nothing to be desired to insure success.

Only good health, endurable weather and workable ice were necessary. The expenditure of a million dollars could not have placed an expedition at a better advantage. The opportunity was too good to be lost. We therefore returned to Etah to prepare for the quest.

Strong efforts had been made to reach the pole from every available quarter. Only the angle between Alaska and Greenland had been left untried. In our prospective venture we aimed to pierce this area of the globe.

If we failed in our main effort we would at least make a track over a blank spot. With the resources for transportation which the Eskimos offered I hoped to carry ample supplies over Ellesmere Land and along the west coast of the game land.

There was reason to suppose that we would avoid the troublesome pack agitated by the Greenland currents. The Eskimos were willing to trust to the game resources of this region to feed and fire the expedition en route to the land's end.

Splendid Advantages Offered.

If their faith proved correct, it offered me a series of advantages denied to every other leader of polar expeditions, for the movement would not only be supplied at the expense of the land which it explored, but men and dogs would be taken to the battleground in superb training, with their vigorous bodies nourished by wholesome fresh meat, not the nauseating laboratory stuff which is usually crowded into the unwilling stomach.

Furthermore, it afforded me a chance to test every article of equipment in actual field work, and, above all, after a hard campaign of this kind I could select with some chance of success the most likely winners for the final race over the circumpolar sea.

A compact was made with the little men of the farthest north to push the venture into the boreal center. When it was noised about at Etah that preparations were in progress to try for the pole most of the men on board the yacht volunteered to serve.

Captain Bartlett, skipper of the John R. Bradley, said that he also would like to stay; but, if compelled to return, he required at least a cook and an engineer to take the yacht back to Newfoundland.

The situation was eased when the captain was told that but one man was wanted. No group of white men could possibly match the Eskimo in his own element. The willing hands of a tribe of 250 people were at my disposal. More help was not required.

But a companion and a general overseer was in demand for this post. Rudolph Francke was selected. Annootok was to be the base of operations.

But there is no harbor near this village to facilitate a rapid landing of supplies, and to hasten the departure of the yacht on her homeward run everything for the polar campaign was brought on deck while the vessel was still at anchor in Etah, and below all was prepared for the expected storms of the return voyage.

Starting For Annootok.

Late in the evening of Sept. 1 the entire village of Etah was taken aboard, the anchor was tripped, and soon the Bradley's bow put out on the waters of Smith sound for Annootok. The night was cold and clear, brightened by the charm of color. The sun had just begun to dip under the northern horizon, which marks the end of the summer double days of splendor and begins the period of storms leading into the long night. Early in the morning we were off Annootok.

The weather was now changed. A strong wind came from the sea. With shallow water, unknown rocks and much ice drifting about no comfortable berth could be found for the yacht. If the overloaded decks were to be cleared at all it must be done quickly.

The launch and all the dories were lowered and filled. Eskimo boats were pressed into service and loaded. The boats were towed ashore. Only a few reached Annootok itself, for the wind increased and a troublesome sea made haste a matter of great importance. Things were pitched ashore anywhere on the rocks where a landing could be found for the boats.

The splendid efficiency of the launch proved equal to the emergency, and in the course of about three hours all was safely put on shore in spite of threatening winds and forbidding seas.

Supplies Taken by Dr. Cook.

Following is the complete list of the supplies provided from John R. Bradley's yacht for the polar dash of Dr. Frederick A. Cook:

Eleven cases of flour, twenty cases cornmeal, six barrels cornmeal, thirty-nine cases biscuits, twelve barrels biscuits, four cases rice.

One case smoked corned beef, four cases pork and beans, eight cases ham, five cases bacon, fifteen cases pemmican, one case beef tongue, two cases codfish.

One case peas, sixteen cases beans, two cases potatoes.

Twenty-one cases sugar, six cases tea, ten cases coffee.

Four cases milk, one case eating butter, one tub butter for cooking, one tub lard.

One case soups, one case catchup, one case pepper, spices, horseradish, etc.; one case vinegar, pickles, mustard, etc.

One case assorted jams and fruits, one case strawberry juice for drinking, one case salt, one case raisins and currants, one case maple sirup, one case dried peaches.

Nine cases tobacco, one case washing and baking powder.

Seven cases matches, seventeen cases coal oil, 115 gallons alcohol, one case candles, 118 bags coal, four stoves, two alcohol stoves, lamps.

One canvas boat, one case rifles, 2,000 rounds ammunition, one Winchester rifle, 1,000 rounds ammunition, one thermos bottle.
